About the presenter:

* Kathleen (KatySue) Tillman, PhD, RPT is a Clinical Child and Adolescent Psychologist and Registered Play Therapist and is an experienced clinician, professor, researcher, professional presenter, and author. Dr. Tillman completed her pre-doctoral internship in child-clinical and pediatric psychology at the Virginia Treatment Center for Children through the Medical College of Virginia before earning her PhD in Counseling Psychology with a concentration in Child Development from the University of North Dakota.

* Dr. Tillman enjoys working with children and adolescents and uses play therapy to work with children and early adolescents experiencing a variety of psychological difficulties. She also integrates therapeutic art, journaling, music, and other creative approaches into her work with children and teens. Dr. Tillman utilizes a collaborative, team-based, approach to treatment.

*Dr. Tillman was one of the first mental health clinicians to practice play therapy using telebehavioral health (tele-play therapy). She has used tele-play therapy for over 6 years with children, adolescents, and families. At the beginning of stay-at-home orders for COVID-19, Dr. Tillman developed and delivered the first foundational trainings in tele-play therapy. These trainings were viewed by over 5,000 therapists across the world!

* Dr. Tillman has published research studies, treatment manuals, play-therapy book chapters, and a children's book. She presents nationally and internationally, and has received awards in the field of counseling innovation and psychological research .

Adlerian Play Therapy: Applications

Agenda:

8:30am - 12:30pm

Tuesday, August 25th, 2020

Kathleen (KatySue) Tillman, PhD, RPT

You will learn to implement an 8-step narrative approach to sandtray therapy via telebehavioral health (using a physical sandtray and cost-effective sandtray kit developed by Dr. Tillman (2003). Participants will also have an opportunity to ask Dr. Tillman questions based upon her 6 years conducting tele-play therapy sessions with children. Come prepared to learn, experiment, and play! It is genuinely surprising how much we can learn together through play... even as adults!

Learning Objectives:

1. Define play therapy using telehealth, sometimes referred to as tele-play therapy.
2. Identify possible benefits of utilizing play therapy via tele-behavioral health with children and families, specifically during a pandemic like COVID-19.
3. Describe the core beliefs of narrative psychology.
4. List 2 possible benefits of using a narrative approach to play therapy with adjustment-related difficulties.
5. Identify each of the 8 stages of the Narrative Therapy Approach to Sandtray Therapy.

Materials needed: large disposable lasagna pan (or sandtray) with sand, stack of index cards, art supplies that can be used to write and draw, popsicle sticks or large and flat river rocks, glue (or tape), and a garbage bag (optional).
