

Adlerian Play Therapy Training - Part 3

March 12, 2021

FEATURING:

Kristin Meany-Walen,
PhD., LMHC, RPT-S

Adlerian play therapy is a widely used play therapy approach with evidence to support its effectiveness with children. In Adlerian play therapy, therapists work to understand their clients from their unique perspectives and intentionally create interventions that respond to clients' needs, assets, and goals. In this interactive workshop, participants practice conceptualizing clients and creating interventions.

Objectives:

1. Participants will be able to:
2. identify the four goals of misbehavior.
3. recognize the four Crucial Cs
4. create interventions that respond to a child's goals of misbehaviors
5. create interventionist that utilize the child's Crucial Cs.
6. tailor interventions based on children's lifestyles.
